So even when the men were formed on three sides of a hollow square, they were scarcely able to distinguish one another in the uncertain light of the morning. There were about three hundred soldiers in the formation. They belonged to the volunteers, and they deployed upon the plain with their band in front playing a jaunty quickstop, while their officers galloped from one side to the other through the grass seeking a suitable place for the execution.

A troop of calvalry halted at the end of the right wing of the square, the band outside the line still playing merrily. A few men and boys who had been drugged out of their beds by the music moved about the ridges behind the soldiers, halfor because the men were still but half-awake, there was no talking in the ranks, and the soldiers stood motionless, leaning on their rifles, with their backs turned to the town, looking out across the plain to the hills.

COOLLY WATCHED THE PREPARA-

As the officer gave the first command "Make ready!" he straightened himself as far as the cords would allow and held up his head and fixed his eyes immovably on the light, which had just begun to show above the hills. He made a picture of such pathetic helplessness but of such courage and dignity, that he reminded me on the instant of the statue of Nathan Hale, which stands in the City Hall Park above the rear of Broadway, and teaches a lesson daily t the hurrying crowds of money-maker who pass beneath. The Cuban's arm were bound as are those of the status and he stood firmly with his weight rest ng on his heefs like a soldier on parad and with his face held up fearlessly as that of the statue's. But there was this difference—that Rodriguez, while probably as willing to give six lives for his country as was the American rebel, being only a peasant, did not think to say so and he will not in consequence live in bronze during the lives of many men but will be remembered only as one of thirty Cubans who were shot at Sant Clara every morning for a month, at

The officer had given the order and the men had raised their pieces, and the condemned man had heard the click o triggers as they were pulled back, and had not moved. And then happened one of the most cruelly refined though unintentional acts of torture that one car very well imagine. As the officer slowly raised his sword, preparatory to giving the signal, one of the mounted officers at him and pointed out silently with his sword what I had already of served with some satisfaction, firing squad were so placed that when soldiers drawn up on the extreme the soldiers drawn up on the extense end of the square.

Their captain motioned his men to lower their pieces and then waiked across the grass and taid his hand on the shoulder of the waiting present. It is not pleasant to think what that shock must have been. The man had steeled himself to receive a volley of buillets in his back. He believed that in the next instant he, would be in another world; he had heard the command given, had heard the circle of the Mausers as the locks caught, and then, at that supreme moment, a human hand had been laid upon his shoulder and a voice spoke in his ear. You would expect that any man who had been smatched back to life in such a fashlon would start and tremble such a fashlon would start and tremble presented to do-speedly claim what Dr. Dayld's is guaranteed to do-speedly current to what is going on around indifferent to what is going on around indifferent to what is going on around indifferent to what is going on around pour; easily tired, and don't know what alls you? GIVE HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO DON't waste time and money on cheap presentations, for it is worse than usesuch a fashion would start and tremble at the reprieve, or would break down altogether; but this boy turned his head steadily, and followed with his eyes the direction of the officer's sword, then nedded his head gravely, and, with his chin still held in the air and his should ers squared, took up a new position, straightened his back again, and once more held himself erect. An exhibition of self-control that should surely be ranked above feats of heroism performed in battle, where thousands of comrades give inspiration.

This man was playing his hand alone in the sight of the hills he knew, with only enemies about him, with no source to draw on for strength but what lay within himself.

HE MET DEATH CALMLY.

The officer of the firing squad, mortified by his blunder, hastily whipped up his sword, the men once more levelled their rifles, the sword rose, dropped, the men fired. At the report the Cuban's head snapped back almost between his shoulders, but his body fell slowly, as though some one had pushed him gently forward from behind and he had stumbled. He sank on his side in the wet grass without a struggle or sound, and did not move again. It was difficult to gure to please you. The officer of the firing squad, mortiemned man, or as a protest against | believe that he meant to lie there, that condemned man, or as a protest against the government. So no one spoke; even the officers gave their orders in gruff, whispers, and the men in the crowd did not mix josether, but looked suspiciously at one another and kept apart.

As the light increased a mass of people came hurrying from the town with two black figures leading them. The soldiers drew up at attention, and part of the double line fell back and left an opening in the square. With us, a condemned man walks only the short distance from his cell to the scaffold or the electric chair, shelded from sight by the prison with the short journey is too much for his strength and courage. But the merciful Spaniards on this morning made the prisoner walk for over hair a mile across the broken surface of fields. I expected to find the man, no matter what his strength at other times might be, stumbling and faltering on this cruel journey, but as he came near I saw he led all the others; that the two priests on either side of him were taking two sieps to his one; and that they were tripping on their gowns and stumbling over the hollows in their efforts to keep pace with him as he walked erect and soldierly at a quick step in advance of them.

He had a handsome, gentle face, of pleasing type, great wistful eyes, and a mass of curly, black hair. He was shockingly young for such a sacrifice, and looked more like a Neapolitian than a Cuban. You could imagine him sitting on the quay at Naples or Genoa, lolling, on the quay at Naples or Genoa, l asleep in the wet grass with his motion less arms still tightly bound behind him with the scapula twisted awry across his face, and the blood from his breast sinking in the soil he had tried to free.

A VIRGINIA FOX-HUNT.

A Fine Mixed Pack, and a Tricky Quarry Give Excellent Sport.

(Written for the Dispatch.) Wednesday afternoon of last week Mesars, John M. Gill, of Granville, Charles Cty county; Richard W. Atkinson, of Malvern Hill; John W. Sweeney and of Malvern Hill; John W. Sweeney and R. F. Sweeney, of Curl's Neck, and R. A. Cornwall, of Wilton, met Mesars, John G. Sketton, T. M. Wertham, George R. Mayo, and Llewellyn McVeith, of Richmond, at "Chaisworth," the home of John H. Chaffin, for the purpose of hunting a large red fox that had been seen at Wilton a number of times, and that had been described as a particularly fine spebeen described as a particularly fine spe-

Mr. Gill brought Twilight, a black and tan hound, famous as the best strike dog in all his section of the State: Ranger, Streak, Rattler, Driver, Drummer, Bowistreak, Rattler, Driver, Drummer, Bowistreak, Rattler, Driver, Drummer, Bowistreak, then again the thunder of Streak, then again the thunder of the thirty-one, a great ranger, and a from moss-bank to fern-bed, flushing the timid woodcock from its morning retreat; then the deep, long-drawn-out notes of Big Music, and the short W Sweeney brought the great black and tan Fiirt, the fastest dog of the whole pack; Bowler, Kid, Feeny, and Gamester. These dogs were the pick of three fine packs that have caught as many as seven foxes in four days this season, and nothing but a red fox can stay before them any length of time.

The morning was a glorious one for fox-hunting, and a start was made bright and early. After riding to Wilton without making a start, Mr. Robert E. Gar-nett, of Varina Grove, with his fine dog Red, one of the hardest running dogs in Red, one of the hardest running dogs in this section of the State, and full bro-ther to the noted Little Music, with Dri-ver. Dick, Darby, Felix, Pat, Ring, and Bounce, joined the party, as also did Mr. Fussell, of Glenfale, with his celebrated Fussell, of Glendale, with his celebrated Big Music, noted through all this section as one of the best strike dogs. He had also Little Music and Fanny. This gave us a pack of thirty-one picked hounds, selected from five fine packs.

Among the horsemen were Mr. John M. Gill, on his old fox-hunter, Major; Mr. Richard Atkinson, on his noted Sam; Mr. John M. Sweeney, on his good son of Prosper, Iceberg; Mr. James Fussell, on his well-known Peter; Mr. Robert E. Garrett, on his fine sorrel mare Dalsy;

In Full, CRY.

He proved to be a cunning runner, as he made directly for the sheepfolds on Wilton. These fences are practically dog-total that purpose. By running through the sheepfolds the fox gained about one mile, but after crossing the Ferry field he decided to change his course and trust more to his head and less to his heels.

and it was a grand sight to see him coming across an open field of two hundred acres, with a pack of thirty-one dogs behind him, each trying to outrun and outcry the other. After running Mraight away for two miles and a half, he again doubled, running through a farmyard, and thereby throwing his pursuers off for a short while. But the hounds quickly struck his trail back of the farm yard. The fox, finding the pace too hot for him, decided to again seek the protection of the sheep. After running a short distance in the pasture he doubled and again put a dog-proof wire fence between himself a dog-proof wire fence between himself and his pursuers. The dogs, after being thrown out by these manocuvres, finally struck his trail, and with a fierceness in their voice that scale. their voice that spoke of no rest until death, they commenced to drive the fox," pushing him up hill and down valley, and giving him no time to try his tricks. He ran through no less than three sheep lots, but all in vain, as the dogs were running to kill, and nothing but death would satisfy them.

IN AT THE DEATH.

The last mile and a half of the chase was in sight of everybody, across a grand piece of country, each dog trying to outrun its neighbor, but Mr. John Sweeney's large black and tan dog Flirt led the pack. The fox darted into the woods, hard pressed by the bounds, followed by some of the horsemen, but, strange to say, the fox attempted to double, and was caught in the open field. Mr. R. F. Sweeney captured the brush; Mr. John G. sharp, flerce voice of Red, as he works | Skelton, on Cassius, being a close second; out the trail, and then through brambles | John H.
